A new version of 2009 of the glorious Alalunga 78 Fly with all-new interiors courtesy of young designer Alessandro Vescia. The interiors are lacquered in ivory with a pearlescent gleam giving them a cool, bright feel. There are also blonde oak details and attractive lighting effects created by cleverly positioned spots in the floors and ceilings. The cockpit leads into the saloon where the conversation area is separated from the dining area. Sumptuous and elegant interiors for the maximum comfort for the guests on board. The wide saloon offers a large sofa for relaxing moments, a structural glass for the construction of the stairway to the fly superimposed on the descent to the cabin below deck gives brightness to the all area, exalting the refined furnishing and the details' care. Next up is a large "L" galley and an oak bridge. Down on the lower deck, the night area offers 4 en suite cabins. The full-beam double master cabin, a VIP cabin with double bed at bow and the 2 twin guest cabins in the center. The fly, complete with second helm station and tender area, offers chaise-longue, a dinette and galley with barbecue unit. Equipped with a pair of 1800 Hp Caterpillars, the new Alalunga 78 delivers a top speed of 36 knots. This confirms the good characteristics of marine hull that has always characterized Alalunga yachts.
