The essence of a yacht built by Marquis lies in a combination of its outward design and its inner strength. While other yachts may be pretty on the outside, those same yachts are frequently found to be undependable, or require excessive amounts of maintenance. Marquis on the other hand, represents the perfect combination of attractive style and superior construction. Marquis is a yacht built for people who are experienced and knowledgeable in both the ways of the world and of the sea.

Marquis yachts are designed and styled by Nuvolari-Lenard Naval Architects of Venice Italy, one of the most renowned naval design firms in the world. Yachtsmen familiar with contemporary yacht design are familiar with the work of Carlo Nuvolari and Dan Lenard. They have special skills in designing yachts that are distinctive in appearance yet practical in use, and have proven their ability to incorporate striking lines and thoughtful features into every one of the many Marquis yachts they have designed.

A yacht's inner strength comes from selecting the right materials and properly implementing an engineering process that results in consistent construction quality. The Marquis yacht yard is staffed by some of the most experienced nautical engineers and yacht builders in the world. Located within America's heartland of ship and yacht building, Marquis represents literally hundreds of years of combined yacht building experience. Every Marquis yacht is built by experienced craftsmen who have an unyielding passion for building the best yachts in the world.
